DISCOVER NEW BEAUTY

NEXT SPRING

Buy BUCKS Holland Grown Tulips Now at New Low Prices

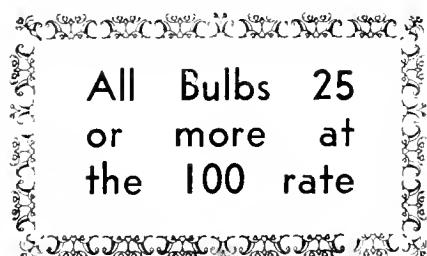

Not the low-growing early ones, gone in a few days, but giants with their great blossoms borne on strong stems, more than two feet high, and so substantial that they last for days in the garden or when cut.

They are new and prized not only for their beauty but because it is a goal which the hybridizers have despaired of reaching. A few of them—a dozen or so—are dramatic against most any background; a whole garden would be breath-taking loveliness. And it is surprising, too, how a small number of each of a few varieties will enhance your garden.

HAVE A GARDEN LIKE AN ARTIST'S PALETTE

But if you would paint your spring picture in full color, tulips offer a limitless palette. From glowing reds and scarlets, flaming orange and deep yellows, to delicate primrose, pink and mauve, the range runs.

The culture is simple. Keep different types separate. Give them perfect drainage, and plant this month.
